

---

Organization of Inland Stations

Number 2

Newsletter

June, 1966

---

Fall Meeting

The response to the question in Newsletter No. 1 on a meeting this September eighteen respondents answered in the affirmative, Four in the negative, and one did not mark the question. It seems opportune, therefore, to proceed with a meeting.

William Marshall. Director of Field Biology, University of Minnesota, has offered the facilities of the Cedar Creek Station, Located about 30 miles north of Minneapolis. This has the advantages of easy access by air travel and also of central location. The tentative dates are September 8 and 9.

Program. It has been suggested that the program should include a session on housing and perhaps one on the NSF Facilities program in terms of what has been accomplished and what remains to be done. Please send other suggestions for material to be covered. We will try to have people from other organizations discuss special subjects. It will also be possible to have business session for the election of officers and formation of the organization.

Reservation. Please send to C. A. Tryon, Pymatuning Laboratory of Ecology Linesville. Pennsylvania, your decision to attend. These must be received by July 5 if the meeting is to be attempted.